Reform 1.1: Implementation of R & I support measures to promote simplification and mobility

The reform shall be implemented by the Ministry of University and Research (MUR) and the Ministry of Economic Development (MiSE) through the creation of an inter-ministerial steering board and the issuing of two ministerial decrees: i) to increase and support mobility (through incentives) of high-profile individuals (such as: researchers and managers) between universities, research infrastructures and companies, and ii) to simplify the management of research funds, iii) reform career path of researchers to increase their focus on research activities. The reform shall move to a more systemic approach to R&D activities, going beyond the current logic of reallocating resources by favouring a sharing approach and shall focus on simplifying red tape in the management of funds dedicated to public-private research activities, generating a significant impact through avoiding dispersion and fragmentation of priorities, also supported by the first component of the Mission.

Investment 1.3: Partnerships extended to universities, research centres, companies and funding of basic research projects

When compared to other European peer countries, the low patents and spin-offs production of Italian research and university system appear particularly critical⁸². This is due to some structural challenges, such as the dominant role of small and medium-sized enterprises in the national economy, the large regional disparities in terms of income and productivity and the low ability of universities to connect with firms.

The investment aims at financing at least 14 major basic research programmes carried out by widespread networks of public and private subjects. The investment is aligned with one of the PNR objectives of promoting positive changes by leveraging fundamental research. Dedicated stakeholder engagement processes shall be conducted for each programme to engage citizens as well as facilitating technology and knowledge transfer to territories, companies and public administrations.

The investment is expected to strengthen national technology chains and promote their participation in strategic European and global value chains.
